

Natalia Orlova joined Alfa Bank in February 1998, and in October 2001 she was made Chief Economist. She covers macroeconomics and is the author of a number of publications on the Russian banking sector. Natalia is Editor-in-Chief of the Alfa Bank Investor Confidence Index, a monthly research publication for the bank's clients and the public at large. She frequently participates in research roundtables and speaks at economic conferences. She is a member of the Central Bank of Russia's expert committee. Natalia is teaching at the High School of Economics. Prior to joining Alfa Bank, Natalia was an analyst at the Russian Opportunity Fund, a French hedge fund specializing in Russian and Ukrainian securities. Natalia has a Ph.D. in Economics from EHESS in Paris.