

Giuseppe Nicoletti

Head of Structural Policy Analysis Division, OECD

Giuseppe Nicoletti, a Ph. D. in Economics from New York University, has been heading since 2004 the Structural Policy Analysis Division at the OECD Economics Department in Paris, where he is in charge of cross-country structural studies presented at the Working Party No. 1 of the OECD Economic Policy Committee, including prospective studies drawing long-term growth scenarios for the world economy. Since 2008, he has also been in charge of work on the economics of climate change mitigation and responsible for green growth related work within the OECD economics department.

In this context, Dr Nicoletti led numerous studies comparing public policies across countries in various areas -- including product and labour markets, taxation, infrastructure investment, innovation and the environment -- and relating these policies to comparative performances of both OECD and emerging economies. His main personal research interests are: the influence of policies and institutions on the determinants of growth; regulation and product market competition; product and labour market reform; the political economy of structural reforms; economic convergence. He has published extensively on both refereed journals and volumes on these topics. Some of his latest studies are: Do Product Market Regulations in Upstream Sectors Curb Productivity Growth? Panel Data Evidence for OECD Countries, The Review of Economics and Statistics, Vol. XCV, No. 5, December 2013; Policy Challenges for the Next 50 Years, July 2014, OECD Economics Policy Paper n.9; Looking to 2060: Long-term global growth prospects, Nov. 2012, OECD Economics Policy Paper n. 3; Employment Effects of Product and Labour Market Reforms: Are There Synergies?, The Economic Journal, 122 (558) Jan 2012; Regulation, resource reallocation and productivity growth, Nordic Economic Policy Review Number 2/2011.
